MEET OUR SPEAKER

Adelle Archer
CEO | Eterneva

Adelle Archer is the CEO & co-founder of Eterneva, an innovative company that honors the lives of remarkable people and pets by turning their cremated ashes into diamonds. In 2019, Eterneva was named Consumer Startup of the Year by the Stevie Awards and was featured on Shark Tank, receiving investment from Mark Cuban. Adelle has been featured on both Inc and Forbes magazines coveted "30 Under 30" lists.

Prior to founding Eterneva, Adelle received her MBA in Entrepreneurship at the Acton School of Business, considered the "navy seal" program for entrepreneurs. At only 23, she graduated valedictorian of her class. She spent four years as a Product Marketing leader in tech, launching major products to market with partners like Amazon, Ebay, Square, Facebook, Pinterest, and Twitter.

MEMBER PROFILE | Eric Jackson

Eric Jackson is the CFO of Brayton James and Associates, a financial consulting firm focused on helping small and mid-sized businesses with financial function transformations, cost reduction projects and financial process improvement initiatives. In addition to his financial responsibilities, Eric and his team provide financial and procurement support to improve value for companies on cost reduction projects in indirect expense categories. He believes companies do an excellent job of managing their largest costs and commodities, but few are really dialed in when it comes to indirect expenses.

Previously, Eric was with HNI Corporation, holding positions of President with their K-12 Educational Furniture division and CFO of The HON Company. Eric's early career was with Schneider Electric, where he held positions including Corporate Controller in their Paris, France headquarters, along with multiple financial roles across their US locations.

Eric has undergraduate degrees in Accounting and Management, is an active C.M.A, received his M.B.A. from the "other UT" (Tennessee), and has completed the Stanford Executive Program. Outside of work, you can find Eric on the local mountain bike trails or on the golf course.
